A goal in life is everything we strive for throughout our lives. Each person has his own specific goal, for example: when a person is small, he set himself a goal that he will study well at school and at all costs he must achieve this, after school everyone strives to become someone: someone is a doctor, someone is a police and teacher, and so on.

Every person has their own goals, dreams in life. Some try to achieve heights in the profession, some to realize their talents, and some to develop spiritually. Goals are something that illuminates our life path, allows us to constantly step forward and achieve something new and unknown.

Very often I think about how to achieve what you want so much. It seems to me that if the desire is very strong, then the person will definitely achieve the goal.

When I was in high school, my goal was to get a gold medal. I carefully prepared for all lessons, tried to answer every question of the teacher. And I achieved my goal - I graduated from school with a gold medal. Later, I wanted to become an English teacher. That was my next goal. I went to pedagogical college, which gave me knowledge that helps me work with children at school. I went through a lot many practices at this college. Now I work as an English teacher at the school and I am glad that I was able to achieve my goal. Now my goal is to improve my skills. To do this, you need to take certain courses.

Perseverance, hard work, an irresistible desire that is all that a person needs to realize their aspirations. Without hard work on yourself, without constant work, a person will not be able to achieve anything. So let's not only dream, but also act!
