One day one man named Pavel decided to remodel his bike to make it more comfortable. He had been fixing the bike since the early morning and his mother decided to bring him some food. She came to the garage and saw a terrible picture. Pavel was trying to join two parts of his bike. He was red and was standing in a very strange position. His mother was very kind. She had never interfered with his problems before so she didn't say anything and went away. In the evening she looked out the window and saw how Pavel was trying to ride his new bike. He travelled two metres and his bike broke into some pieces. Pavel was very angry. His mother pulled the curtains and couldn't stop laughing.
