

image not found or type unknown

The place for visitors should be designed in the same corporate style: this serves as a kind of advertising and allows you to give the visitor an idea of the office, to bring the concept of the company. The composition of the premises for visitors should be taken depending on the types of services. Premises for visitors should be designed in accordance with the category of the enterprise, that is, taking into account the type of enterprise, its capacity, selected forms and methods of service, the number of visitors and their goals.

Let's take a beauty salon as an example. Designing a beauty salon implies that the room should be functional, attractive and comfortable for visitors and staff. It is important that the interior of the room is attractive, bright and interesting. The design of the space should not only be visually pleasing and memorable, but also functional. This means good lighting and proper placement of furniture and equipment so that your employees can work comfortably and your customers feel comfortable. In the basic example of designing a Studio, the following sections are designated: entrance area and reception; waiting area; hangers or booths for outerwear; image area; cosmetologist's office; massage room; Solarium and service rooms. The main requirement for the interior when designing a beauty salon is the maximum free space in which it is convenient to move, and comfort. Waiting area - when designing, you should not save on furniture for visitors and try to seat two people on a small sofa. The reception is the face of the salon, so the counter often has a design with its symbol. Display cases with products sold by a beauty Studio should be placed next to the waiting area. Then the user will view the products, this will be a plus. When designing a bathroom, it is necessary to provide hooks and shelves for bags and phones. Next, it is a work area - an open space in which there are Barber chairs, a manicure table, a pedicure and a make-up artist. Also, well-chosen color solutions will help set up employees to work, and provide customers with a positive experience. The external and internal design of the room can play a significant role in the question of whether the client wants to come to you again or not. For the design, I would choose the high-tech style - multifunctional furniture and equipment will be well combined with minimalism and laconism of the interior. The main definitions of style are a combination of glass, plastic and metal, clear lines and perfection in everything.

In this way, I described all the difficulties and seriousness of one of the many places people visit, as well as the arrangement of the salon and the creation of design. This activity is pleasant, but requires responsibility and diligence. The interior design of a beauty salon should not only be stylish, but also convenient for customers and craftsmen.