Each of us wants to know their future. It may open new doors in the lives, may help to avoid mistakes and choose the right way, and that isn't all the advantages! But we can't predict exactly the future, at least all of us. Every normal man has some expectations about it, and me, too. Of course we can try to make predictions for ourselves, for others, but whatever it will be wrong, because the future is changeable and impermanent. And because we are all just the humans.

What about me, I see my future is very blurry. How often we make plans and how often they fail! However, despite this, I hope to find my place in this world. So much people around me choose wrong ways every day! And I don't want to be like them. Long years ago I have chosen something that matters for myself, and I continue to adhere to this.

I think I will be the good one for my family, friends and important people. Maybe I will find a good job that will allow me be at home with the husband and kids. I would accumulate a lot of money for moving in a new big cottage in nature, for buying books. I would learn three or more languages, to sing well, to draw like a pro, and maybe someday I will have got a travel to Japan, Argentina, the USA and France. Recently I want to be a good writer and I surely will try to publish my book or several. Maybe I will translate them to English, if I will know it brilliant.

I have all this plans and I think that one day they will be left behind, because my wishes will come true. It is not too important to predict the future - it's important to know what you want from life.
