Everyone understands the word "home" in their own way. For one, a house is a cozy apartment, for another it is a favorite city, and for someone, a house is a whole country. First of all, it seems to me that the house is a place where a person feels safe, where it is calm and cozy. A house is a place where a family lives.

I love my home very much. It is very cozy and beautiful. I live there with my beloved, native and friendly family. What does the phrase "my home" mean to me? It is not just the walls surrounding me, the ceiling above my head and the floor under my feet. No, that is not the most important thing. The most important thing for me is the surrounding atmosphere in which we live.

We have a large house with 3 bedrooms. One room is mine, the second is my older brother's, and the third is my parents'. We also have a room where we watch TV together and talk about different topics. Also in this room we receive guests.

My mother's favorite place in our house is the kitchen. She spends most of her time in the kitchen. She loves to cook and bake, so the kitchen is hers.

The walls in the parents' bedroom are decorated with various photos. There are a lot of books on the shelf in my room, because I like to read. From the windows of my room you can see the forest, where we go for mushrooms and berries.

I always come home with a great desire: after a rest, work or evening walk. In winter, my house will warm me up when it's freezing outside. In your home, you can hide from trouble, be alone with your thoughts or spend an unforgettable evening with your family. My home is a place where I am always expected, where they will support me in a difficult moment and rejoice with me with good news. Home is a place of love and kindness.
