I think the pressure among people will not stop as long as bad people live in this sinful world. There is a lot to say or discuss about pressure, since this is a broad topic and because of the pressure, many fall into a deep depression, although they do not deserve it. Pressures in this world are of different types of pressures among politicians pressure among prosecutors or lawyers, or maybe even among young people. All this people experience in different ways in different countries of the world, someone without problems and someone with difficulties goes through it. Now adolescents have such a habit if they do not like this or that teenager or have done something wrong, they mock him, humiliate him, they humiliate him in every possible way, although he didn't deserve it until they get beaten and it happens all over the world in different ways. Then it will be difficult for a teenager to forget all this, as it leaves scars on the soul and may even fall into a deep depression and this is not right. People have reached the point that they have

Even begun to put pressure on their friends, close relatives, on their work colleagues, and this is happening all over the world, as mentioned earlier.

It is difficult for children to endure these pressure of humiliation of beating, because they are not mature enough to go through on their own and mainly the parents of the children help, or they do not say it and even go to suicide because they are unbearably painful because of bad people and this is the worst thing that can pass in children's lives. All the more, this virus has now spread all over the world from which people are dying and therefore people are scared and they begin to press each other for no reason or with a reason, and not only among people but also among politicians there is pressure. Until people learn to live in peace and be kind, this pressure from people I think will not stop because it is only useful for people and they will not rush with insults and put pressure on each other.

So be a little kinder and look at the world with different views, because this is just what you need, as it will affect your mood, your mental health and just your health.
