

image not found or type unknown

It was very sunny and warm day. Day of my graduation. I finished my institute and got my first diploma - diploma of a lawyer. A lot of my relatives arrived to Moscow to attend on the ceremony of graduation. But in that day graduating was not really important for me. My mind was full of a pleasing excitement, because in that day I was waiting for my wedding.

The ceremony of my graduation was starting. My girlfriend, parents, relatives and friend were happy for my diploma with distinction. Some of them even cried from happiness for me. After graduation ceremony I started to prepare to wedding ceremony: delivered the girlfriend to beauty shop, booked a restaurant, negotiated with our photographer and bought bride's bouquet

After those preparations, me, my girlfriend, her bridesmaid and my groomsman went to wedding photoshoot. It was in the beautiful park near Moscow. After photoshoot we met with our relatives and went to the registrar. We both said "yes", signed in the certificate and got the official standing of husband and wife. Then we went to the restaurant to celebrate those event.

Late at night, when all guests left celebration, me and my wife went to one of the bridges in center of Moscow and locked a padlock on the bridge railing.

And it was the most memorable day in my life.