Millions of people in the world spend their holiday traveling. Luckily, there are many companies today, which can organise your tour and leisure time wherever or whenever you like. As for me, I am curious to know more about new places and counties, to explore their slights and to learn about other peoples cultures. Most of all, I'm interested in English-speaking countries.

Last year, my parents decided to arrange a tour to Great Britain for me. It was supposed to include two teacher and ten children. I can't tell you how happy I was . It was during autumn holidays and I was planning to stay for a week. The only problem was weather. At this time of the year Britain is rainy and humid. Although, compared to the great time I was going to have there, it was nothing. So I packed my bags and prepared for the voyage.

We arrived to London by plane. At the airport we were greeted by our host families. I was going to stay at my penfriend's place in a village not far from Bristol. The view there was breathtaking. It was a small settlement with a number of neat houses and several farmyards. There were some stores and a pub. When we wanted to experience city rush, we drove to Bristol. I liked this city. It was full of light, spacious stores, various restaurants, malls with cinema theatres, cute bridges and castles. There was even an adventure park for kids in Bristol surroundings, which we visited on the third day of our stay.

When I returned home, I was full of positive emotions. If I get a chance I will visit this country again.
