I don't even know where to start writing my Essay on "Money is the most important thing in my life". Since I don't earn money myself yet, I can just philosophize.

If you read the concept of money in textbooks on Economics, it is considered a universal equivalent, which serves as a measure of the value of any goods and services that can be directly exchanged for them.

As I believe and hear in my society of teenagers, money is the main thing in life nowadays, since it is money that makes it possible to study and get the education of your dreams, eat right, dress and just live. But do not forget that you need to earn money. In order for a person to earn money, they study at school, then study at an institution to get a specialty and start working.

I sometimes wonder what role money plays in my life.

Personally, I would like to have a middle as the scales in relation to money.

In order for me to have a stable financial situation in the future, I try to study well, get a decent education and start working to provide for my family and faithfully fulfill my duties to the state.

Why do I think that money is the most important thing in my life, because it gives a wide range of opportunities and people feel free and happy from this opportunity.
