I don't have a profession that I like, because in the future I dream of opening a hotel. I want to become the owner of my own hotel. I would not say that this is a profession, it is rather related to a vocation.

How did I come to this?

As a child, I attended many different sections and circles. This should have formed in me a love for any particular occupation, but the only thing that I liked so much and still like it is travel. Unfortunately, I do not know of a single travel profession that suits me. Therefore, until 2021, I could not give an exact answer to the question "who I want to be." All this time I was looking for myself.

Previously, my parents and I often traveled to different countries and stayed in a large number of very beautiful and modern hotels. It really mesmerized me. The attitude of the staff, their etiquette and the fact that each hotel had something special.

The idea of creating my own hotel first came to me at the very moment when I was in Bali and lived in such an interesting hotel as Bungalow.

It is a one-story single-family home, often with a flat roof and a large veranda. I liked the atmosphere so much, and I realized for myself that I wanted to create something similar so that people would keep a piece of my hotel in their hearts for the rest of their lives.

That is why I went to study in the hotel business. I really want to learn a lot of interesting things from this profession in order to become a qualified specialist in this field and create the best hotel on the planet.
