

image not found or type unknown

My life would be much more boring and sad without many of the things that I use every day. But there are five things that I definitely can't do without.

Phone. He plays an important role in my life. He allows you to be in touch with relatives who are at a distance from me. Replaces me a music player, TV, camera, and dilutes leisure. If I feel bad, sad or angry, I turn on the music and my mood immediately improves. In addition, with a good phone on hand, you can work and earn money thanks to it.

The Internet. This is by itself something that no modern man can do without. This is another way of communication. You can find a lot of information in it. Thanks to the Internet, I study and make money.

Money. This is also a basic need. They are needed for food, for shopping, for the maintenance of the house and family. For good and travel, for health. Yes, they say happiness is not in money, but believe me, they solve so many problems that allows a person to experience less difficulties, and I think I'm becoming happier. When I have a shortage of money, I feel discomfort and anxiety and start looking for ways to make money

Books. Perhaps I can not imagine my leisure without books. This is an opportunity to immerse yourself in a whole new world. A lot of different plots and stories that can be read for hours, drawing in the imagination everything that is described by skilled writers. My favorite genre is fantasy. Well, if you move away from reality from time to time, then of course to the magical world.

And finally, coffee. This is what I cannot imagine my morning without. Not even because he supposedly has to give energy and invigorate. This is just a special ritual: to make wonderful coffee and enjoy its taste in silence, making a plan for the day. It itself fills with a resource.

I would have attributed a lot more to this list, but the above is what makes up my everyday life.