My mother and I decided to break away from the local routine for 2 days and ride our bikes to the Oka (River in the Tula region) and relax there for the weekend.

The first day of the trip was not a bad one, except for the fact that we got there not in 6-8 hours, but in almost 10, and even when we had less than an hour to our destination, it rained heavily! It was pouring down like a bucket.

As soon as we arrived, we immediately set up our tent so we could lie down to rest and not get soaked to the skin.

The next day, when the rain stopped, we were resting, and so that managed to get a tan. In spite of this we were all set to go back to the routine, as the weekend was over, got there safely in these 2 days in total I rode more than 700 kilometers on a bicycle.

This was my first and so far my only experience traveling by bicycle, I really enjoyed it and would love to do it again! I recommend this to those who like to ride bikes.
