My future profession

Everyone has at least thought of what they wanted, or plan to achieve in the future. People have different interests in life and should consider this in choosing a career, because the most important thing to remember is that you should find a job that you will love to do.

Nowadays the profession of an accountant is very important. In every organization there is a specialist, who should be able to maintain the accounting, inventory, make accounting reports and settlements with suppliers and consumers, calculate profit or anticipate losses, calculated salaries of the staff and so on.

The name “accountant” of German origin and literally means “book holder”. A person of this profession conducts books of accounts. This is accounting for the property of the enterprise, economic obligations. This is a person who controls the financial condition of the enterprise.

Accountant – accurate, accustomed to accuracy, punctual person. In some ways, he’s even meticulous: he has to constantly monitor changes in legislation. The rules for submitting reports change, new norms are introduced. An error of the accountant can cost the enterprise money, and considerable. Therefore, high qualification in this profession is the first requirement.

Being an accountant is the career that most interests me, because I've always had a love for math. The type of education or training I will need for this job is a minimum of four years of a bachelor's degree in accounting. Accountants prepare, analyze, and check the accuracy of financial information. You can work in environments like the government, non-profit organizations, and private businesses. All companies depend on accountants to keep their business running well.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics website states that employment opportunities for accountants will grow by 16% through 2020, as fast as the average for all occupations because of economic growth around the world.

Successful people help the community and I want to be a part of that process.

I value the advice my parents gave me - follow your heart and you will succeed. I am going to do what I love and will put my heart and effort into it and hopefully, I will realize my dreams of becoming an accountant someday.
