Nowadays, people often have 2 choices for their place of residence. Some people prefer to live in a small town and others – in a big city. I think that one of the important decisions that a person needs to make is the choice of his place of residence, a place where you will feel comfortable and happy. Speaking about me, to be honest, I do not like large crowds of people, and there are many people in big cities. But, whatever that may be, I still prefer to live in a big city. I will explain why.

Firstly, living in a big city means living in a city of great opportunities. All sorts of companies and corporations, that open their doors to you, to help realize your ideas, dreams and goals. Secondly, in big cities there are huge supermarkets, where everyone can find items, products to their own taste. Various parks many places, where you can go to relax with your friends and family. A big city never sleeps. And I want to say I really like that atmosphere, especially at night, when there are many different lights burning

However, I can say that many people still prefer to live in a small town.

I think that I can understand them, because such people prefer living in a quiet place. In small cities, the air is much cleaner than in a big city and, accordingly, the ecology is much better. All like one big happy family. Everyone knows each other, often helping in difficult situations. People in small towns are not so spiritual and unsophisticated , but not fussy cynics from the capital. Here, the inhabitants have not become overgrown with the "scab", they are not running, not paying attention to anyone in their super important matters. They do not have to stand in traffic jams, push in the subway, be under the constant influence of advertising, in constant stress.

In conclusion, I would like to say that all people have different tastes and preferences. Everyone is free to choose what suits him, what he likes.
