

image not found or type unknown

About one and a half billion people speak English, and the same number study it. Almost all international conferences and competitions are held in English. For example, the Olympic games or "Miss world". Diplomats and politicians from different countries use English to communicate with each other.

If your goal is a first — class education, then most likely you will need English. In most prestigious universities in the world, education is fully or partially conducted in English.

English opens up wide career opportunities. Each of us wants to be successful. Knowledge of a foreign language will help to get the desired position. Employers value people who are able to communicate in foreign languages.

Do you want to expand your business? Without English you nowhere, because it is used in many areas of business, and is the key to success in business communication.

Also, English is useful in traveling. Whatever country you go to, English will come in handy in any case. For example, street signs are often written in both local and English. Speaking English, you can easily overcome the language barrier and enjoy the trip.