I can't say I like to travel, as I like a quiet and lazy style of travel. In the near future, my girlfriend and I got married. so, we're planning an incredible trip for our honeymoon on summer holidays.

Me and my future wife are deciding where will we go at our honeymoon.

We plan that the day after our wedding we will go to Italy for a couple of weeks, to visit this beautiful country and know its culture. we also like the idea of visiting china, exactly to Hainan Island. We couldn't decide on something concrete, so we decided to visit both countries on a trip.

In Italy we plan to take a trip from Pisa to Venice, through Florence and Rome. We want to be in Pisa for about three days. We want to visit the Tower of Pisa, go to Marina of Pisa, walk there along the beach and to have a dinner in a restaurant with sea views. on the third day we will go to Florence by train and stay for approximately four days. we want to visit the Uffizi museum. Surround the Battistero di San Giovanni and visit the Porta del Paradiso.

From Florence to Rome by train to stay there one day and visit the Roman Colosseum. And from there go to Venice. To spend a week there, visiting some interesting places there, and spend some on the beach. Obviously let's not forget to go for a ride in gondola and some boat trip to the sea!

After Italy we would go by plane to china to spend the rest of the honeymoon lying on the beach and living a good expiring of visiting and meeting a new country and a new culture.

I'm very happy to have the chance to go on this wonderful trip or be with my beloved bride-to-be.
