I have always dreamed of visiting the land of the rising sun - Japan. Japan has always been attractive for tourists, because everything is interesting here: nature, history, unique traditions, identity and culture. The land of the rising sun is fabulously charming and has not lost its appeal over time. Japan is beautiful at any time of the year and always has something to please the heart and soul.

I am very attracted to such a natural sight as cherry blossoms. It truly fascinates with its scale, and the attitude of the Japanese to this event is special. No less intriguing sight are the mountains and volcanoes that abound on the Japanese Islands. The most famous mountain peak is considered Fujiyama, which is a symbol of Japan.

The architecture of Japan is amazing and full of contrasts, as the highest cold skyscrapers are combined with ancient monuments, luxurious palaces and ancient temples. In order to visit them all you need a lot of time. However, the one that should be seen without fail is the temple "Big Buddha", located in the ancient capital of Nara.

After visiting Japan, travelers arrive different, enriched internally, wise and peaceful. The Japanese are very attentive to tourists and always welcome them, so in this country you feel at home.
