

image not found or type unknown

Fear. Hatred. Pain.

In 2072, the large corporation "Newlight" surpassed themselves, they worked for a long time on artificial intelligence, although there was already enough of it in the world, but they wanted to invent something better, something that no one else had ever seen in real life, what will change this world, the entire planet Earth. And they did it. In general, the world was already filled with new technologies, all machines no longer needed people, they had automatic control, all equipment was from holograms, so there was no need to carry a heavy laptop with you to the university or to work, all this replaced the hologram console. Before that, everything was available anyway, the Internet, shops, groceries, it was only necessary to get off the couch and walk a couple of meters, but it became even easier, because electronic food also appeared, whatever you want, just press the switch on the remote control. But "Newlight" did not stop there either, they created robots that almost completely replaced people, governments were not against it, because it was always beneficial for them and of course because robots did not know how to get tired, they did everything clearly and correctly, without a single mistake that people could make. Unemployment has increased, but not to a critical state. Also, almost every family had robots, and of course they did all the work for us, washed us, cooked, cleaned, even raised children, built houses. They were like us, they even talked like us, sometimes the impression was that these iron boxes have a heart and feelings. They could support, even provide psychological help, I worked as a psychologist and was glad that at least some small part of people did not finally plunge into this sphere of emptiness, and simply on simply programmed machines. Yes, now it's clear why «Newlight» spent so much time creating these androids. Everything was fine for 10 years, it seems that even I was used to living in the world of robots and people, but it only seemed to us all that what happened next was not expected. All this time, humanity thought that we are still smarter than them, because we created them, but the artificial intelligence behaved differently, these damn machines, raised a rebellion, during these 10 years they were preparing a plan, through the invisible Internet network they transmitted to each other information, communicated with each other, and no one could track it, over the years they became smarter, began to understand the whole reality of what was happening, and came to the question of why such unique "creatures" like them, who are superior to humans in everything, should work for humans ... They decided to destroy the human world and take over the Earth. And the war began, a cold war sparing no one. The "Newlight" could not stop them, the androids finally figured out their origin and blocked all possible ways to control them. The war went on for 5 years, and nothing and no one could stop them, they destroyed us. A very small number of people managed to survive, we had the only way out, to go into space, and find a new exoplanet for habitation and reproduction. During the war, we managed to create one large spaceship. 40 years have passed, we all still hope that we will find a new planet, start a new life and will not repeat the mistakes that we made on our beloved Earth. If you read this now and understand our language, it means that we did not succeed, we did not get there. And where did you find us, found this letter, how much time has passed we will never know, but now you know about us and about our planet Earth.