At the moment I live in Chelyabinsk. Namely, in the metallurgical district. My neighborhood has a kindergarten and three schools. There is a hospital on the north side. There is a bank, post office, beauty salons and sports clubs. There are good playgrounds in every yard. There are quite a lot of clothing and grocery stores in my area. And many other stores. There are also many sites where you can walk with friends and family. There is a theater nearby, where I often go with my colleagues and friends. The place where I work is right here. This is a new modern four-story building that looks great. It is built close to my house, so I do not spend much time getting there. There is a small park not far from my house. On warm sunny days, mothers with young children walk there. There are several attractions in the park, and my friends and I really like to relax there.

Everything seemed to be in my neighborhood. But the stores I listed do not have the products or the clothes I need. And all this is just closer to the city center. My friends always call me to their place, but I have a very long way to go before them and because of this, our meetings are often canceled.

Actually, my neighborhood is not bad, but I would still like to change it. I live very far from the city center, it is about an hour's drive. So it is inconvenient. Because in the center and is all the most necessary and interesting. Almost all my friends and relatives live in the city center. I would like to move closer to the city center.
