We all strive for something in our lives. We want to become someone, have something, go somewhere. A person must have a goal in life, without it is easy to get lost on the path of life. Therefore it is very important to correctly determine which direction to move in. In my opinion the goal in life can be what you want, what allows you to develop and also benefit other people.

In 2008 I graduated from Tolstoy Tula state University. My main goal was to get a job. I guess it wasn't by chance that I became a leading HR specialist at the Pirogov Russian national research medical University. I bought a second home for myself, a family, in which I am expected, loved, appreciated, which I rush to with interesting ideas and a good mood. Of course, there are difficulties in the work, and not without conflicts, resentments and disappointments. But I can always ask for advice from namesh a friendly team, which in any incomprehensible situation for me and will give the right advice, for which I am very grateful to them.

Goals can be big and small, noble and selfish, but they lead us through life. There are UPS and downs, joy and disappointment . Each new barrier is a way to explore something unknown, learn new skills.

The secret of my achievements as a specialist-credit to our Manager. undoubtedly, this is a leader for our team. Thanks to the head of the Department we have such a friendly team. You need to be able not only to manage the Department, but also to be a good friend, adviser to his subordinates. That is why we have such high results.

I know that everything that happens to us is the result of only our thoughts and actions. I am convinced that you should never lose heart and give up. Success is always there you only need to believe in it.

There is an expression the end justifies the means. But you need to remember that in order to achieve your goals, you can't make other people unhappy. A goal achieved in this way will never bring happiness to anyone. You can be left without the support of people you once loved and devoted to you, that you will never trust again. In Russian literature, there are examples when the goal is not justified by the ways of its achievement. In the novel «Crime and punishment» by Dostoevsky it shows how the main character made a mistake, who believed that great individuals were allowed to commit crimes for the good. Raskolnikov tests his theory who has committed the murder of an old woman who is an interest payer. But killing doesn't make anyone happy.

There is a restriction called morality. You should always think about the consequences.
