A hero is anyone who can show courage when faced with a problem. A hero is a person who is able to help another in various ways. A person can become a hero by saving someone who is in danger. Another example of a hero is someone who is there to help others and gives them strength to go on through life's difficulties. A hero can be someone who gave up his or her life so another could live. A hero does not always have to show courage he can be afraid but still be a hero through his other actions.

I do believe that heroes don't have to be afraid to do engage in a heroic act. Most of the time heroes are scared because they are human just like any of us. But they feel a moral obligation or something inside of them tells them to act regardless of they are scared or not. A lot of times heroes talk about being scared at the time but that they had some type of super human strength or will that allowed them to act like or helped them do what they had to do. But sometimes a hero can be a teacher or a school counselor. They can teach you to read or write and that will make a huge difference in your life. But most of the time that will go unappreciated during your lifetime until you're older and start reflecting on your life. You will sit back and think that without that teacher that taught you how to read you of never been able to get a job or go on to college. These are heroes that are overlooked everyday and don't get the recognition they deserve.
