Each member of some family has a new model of phone and each family has a computer. Our grandparents did not even know about these “magic machines”. They took information from books only. My parents just started meeting with modern technologies at 2008-2009.

When I was younger my mother and father have got our first computer. My young brother as computer genius learned everything in it. He downloaded popular at those moment games and social media . There we found our classmates and then we got first messages from our friends. It was very scary and interesting experience. Now we know that one of benefits of using computer is connect with people through the distance. One more benefit is computer games. My brother adores play at something new. He could play during for 8 hours . Now our computer is broken and too old. But a lot of adult people make money by playing at computer games. Also owning computer and internet we sell our things or something else, for example- artworks.

We know that in internet we have good things : meeting with new people from another countries , we make money ,but also we can be suffered. Yes, bad people find us from anywhere. They steal money or personal information and use it against you and good for them. Even just for have a fan. But in the end they get a big term in prison. By computer we study and learn a new for us and use it in our life.

In the end,we know that who owns information- owns everything. The main in computer is internet and there are good and bad sides. Bad people do bad things- good do good things and idiots do everything they want.
