People of all ages have a dream. Someone wants to live abroad, others dream of becoming popular. We also want to be healthy, happy, have many friends and be independent. And each of us sometimes wondered if he had a million dollars, what would he spend this money on.

If I had a million, I would not be wasting this money. This is not exactly the same dream, but just this million would help my dreams come true. First of all, I would help my parents financially, because all these years they helped me, worked hard for this, I think it's time to help them. I would also like to take them to the countries where they would like to go. I think this is a good investment.

After university, I would like to open my own business and to build the house of my dream, so that in the future I will be always independent and not need anything.

I don't know how much money I would spend on all this, but I would really like to make a donation. It is so sad that people nowadays suffer from many diseases. I would really like to invest some amount of money in research. Perhaps this money would help find a new drug and a cure from cancer, for example.

It's easy to say how I would spend that money. It is very important for me to make my family happy. Money is just a tool, not a dream itself. I am quite an ambitious person and I am sure that one day all my dreams will come true, if I'll turn them to the goals.
