We are so different and so similar at the same time. We can have common hobbies and interests, but different sense of life. Our life depends on many things: our family, the place of living, relatives, our pretty pets, the work, the music, hobbies ...the list is infinite.

A person chooses what is more important for him, and what he can't live without. By the way, it's hard for us to name so easily at least 5 things from the list. Our life is versatile, that's why this problem happens. There are obvious things we can't live without like water, food, and air. Nevertheless, this topic is not about physical things, but more about our preferences, hobbies, and habits, as I dare to assume, like jogging in the morning or a piece of favorite cake.

As for me, I can't imagine myself and my life without having my next hobbies: dancing, singing, listening to the music, and cooking. They are inherent part of me.

Dancing. Dancing keeps my body healthy, strong and beautiful. Except physical part, dancing teaches to listen to the rhythm, and move to the beat. Also it helps to open yourself, and to be yourself, to meet new friends and, finally, it gives a lot of positive emotions. Just one hobby has got so many advantages.

Singing and listening to the music. I don't separate these things, because as I remember, all the time, when I listening to the music, I sing even inwardly, if I am out of the house. I'd been singing karaoke before, but recently I began taking vocals courses. I am so delighted and want to learn my favorite songs as fast as I can. I also can't imagine taking a shower without singing; walking or going somewhere without listening to the music.

Traveling. Traveling and adventures -that is me. Full of love to the nature, new places, cultures and people - I can't live without visiting new places. I want to see a lot places in the world, as much as can for the whole life.

Desire for knowledge. I can't imagine my life without desire for knowledge. I am used to my life is full of new ideas, new hobbies and interests. I am fond of knowing new places and things.

The list is not over; I have just picked up several preferences, which are the closest to me. I also wish good luck to people in deciding, what is the most important for them. It is not so easy, as it seems.
